A Profile of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association

Founded in 1921 by 14 publishers, the Texas Daily Newspaper Association is now the collective voice of the state's daily newspapers. There are over 80 dailies in Texas today with a combined 3 million in circulation, and TDNA members represent 90% of that circulation.

We provide a broad range of services for TDNA members—protecting the legislative interests of the press and newspaper industry, administering online circulation reports, management of the Texas headlines and Texas public notice websites, online support, producing conventions, interacting with Texas Universities and Colleges, administering numerous journalism awards and fielding day-today requests for legal and technical information.

Throughout its existence, TDNA has filled a major role in developing the newspaper industry in Texas. During the 1940s, TDNA helped build support for construction of the Southland Paper Mill in Lufkin—the first plant to produce newsprint from southern pine. During the 1950s, TDNA started a summer college student intern program and began conducting workshops/seminars for employees of TDNA-member papers on management, editorial, advertising and circulation topics.

In the early 1980s, TDNA won a legal battle against AT&T which prevented the legal monopoly from providing information services over its lines in Austin at an unfair advantage over newspapers and other news media that might want to enter the telecommunications field. During the 70th Legislature, TDNA was successful in its effort to repeal the tax on newspaper circulation that was enacted in 1984. Actual termination of the tax became effective October 1, 1987.

TDNA began the 1990s by coordinating development of a voluntary newsprint recycling plan that resulted in the state's 1991 Omnibus Recycling Act. Throughout its history, the association has played a major role in protecting the right of the media to report the news, including filing legal briefs and entering lawsuits on behalf of freedom of information and other First Amendment-related issues.

As issues in the Texas Legislature have grown more complex during the last 10 years, TDNA has had a daily presence at the State Capitol during regular and special sessions. TDNA's in-house lobbyist has partnered with the Texas Press Association, to present a united front for newspapers of all sizes, resulting in successful efforts to protect the public's right to know by preserving public notice, warding off efforts to weaken open meetings and open records laws, and assuring the industry is not targeted on tax issues. In 2010, this partnership was instrumental in passage of the "Free Flow Information Act".

Heading into the 21st Century, TDNA will continue to defend the public's right to know through freedom of information, even as we embrace electronic technology and advances in online advertising. Our promise to you—to continually strive to meet the changing needs of our membership base.

The Daily Texan-Texas Student Media

www.dailytexanonline.com

The Daily Texan (dailytexanonline.com) has produced more Pulitzer Prize winners than any other student newspaper in the country. The winner annually of awards in state, regional and national contests, The Texan enjoys its relationships with other newspapers in the state, region and nation in developing internships and job placements. It has served the students, faculty and staff of The University of Texas at Austin since 1900.

The Texan is published by Texas Student Media, which also produces the Cactus Yearbook, Freshman Directory, Texas Travesty humor magazine, and the campus telephone directory. In addition, TSM operates student-run television (TSTV) and radio stations (KVRX), as well as websites for student media and advertisers. TSM is the largest student media organization in the country.

The University of North Texas Libraries has shaped the Texas Digital Newspaper Program to host and digitally preserve historically significant newspapers published across Texas. Due to the staggering number of newspapers titles published in Texas, we are always seeking to form partnerships with publishers and local public libraries to digitize and preserve their newspaper collections. Our goal is to create a digital newspaper resource that covers as broad a geographic area as possible, and this will most easily happen through collaboration and partnership.

Students in the nationally accredited School of Journalism choose from four areas: print, broadcast news, multi-media and photojournalism. In each area, students pursue a mix of theory and professional courses. They do their work in one of the nation's best-equipped facilities. All students learn to write and edit stories electronically, using modern computer techniques. Many journalism students also work on The Daily Texan, recognized as one of the top student newspapers in the nation. Graduates of the department have an excellent employment record nationally.

The University of Texas at Tyler was created in 1971 and became a component of The University of Texas System in 1979. Originally established as an upper-level university, UT Tyler's mission was expanded in 1997 by the Texas Legislature authorizing it to offer classes for first year and sophomore students. The journalism program draws many of its journalism students from nine junior colleges within a 50-mile radius of Tyler. The program serves approximately 65 journalism majors and offers the BA and BS undergraduate degrees in journalism and participates in a graduate degree program offering the MA in Communication. Journalism internships are an important part of the student's program of study.
